August 1st, 2025

Dear Valued Industry Partners and Sponsors,

We hope this message finds you well. We are pleased to announce that the 9th International Conference on Food Factors (ICoFF 2026) and the 12th International Conference on Polyphenols and Health (ICPH 2026) will be held jointly from Tuesday, October 13, to Saturday, October 17, 2026, at Pacifico Yokohama North and other venues in Yokohama, Japan.

The ICoFF began in Hamamatsu, Japan, in 1995, focusing on cancer prevention through food-derived bioactive compounds. Since then, it has become a distinguished international forum where experts in food science, medicine, and pharmaceutical sciences gather to share the latest advances in the bio-regulatory functions of food factors. Following successful conferences in Korea, Taiwan, and China, the conference will return to Japan for its next edition.

First held in Vichy, France, in 2003, the ICPH has been convened biennially across various countries and has grown into a central hub for international polyphenol research collaboration. Following the most recent meeting in Boston, the conference will come to Japan for its 2026 edition.

The joint meeting in Yokohama is the second collaboration between the International Conference on Food Factors (ICoFF) and the International Conference on Polyphenols and Health (ICPH), following the highly successful 2019 conference in Kobe, Japan, which brought together more than 1,600 researchers from over 40 countries. The 2026 conference will be held under the overarching theme: "Food Augmentation: Function, Sensory, and Experience." This theme reflects our goal to explore the full potential of food in terms of not only its biological function but also its sensory properties and its role in enhancing the overall human experience.

Although we aim to fund the conference through registration fees and institutional support, a substantial amount of funding must be obtained through the generous contributions of organizations and companies like yours. Your support is essential to ensuring the success and accessibility of this important scientific gathering. We would greatly appreciate your consideration of supporting the goals of this conference through sponsorship or donation. Please see the attached guidelines for details on sponsorship packages and benefits. All sponsors will be prominently acknowledged on the official website, in the printed program, and at the conference venue, enhancing visibility and engagement with participants from around the globe.

We sincerely appreciate your consideration and hope to collaborate with you to make ICoFF & ICPH 2026 a truly impactful event. With our warmest regards,

Prof. Naomi Osakabe

About the Japan Society of Food Factors (JSoFF)

After the first International Conference on Food Factors (ICoFF) in Hamamatsu, Japan, in 1995, interest in the scientific study of "functional food factors" based on solid evidence surged significantly. The conference far exceeded expectations, attracting nearly 1,000 participants and fostering lively, in-depth discussions across disciplines. Inspired by the overwhelming enthusiasm and feedback that this should be an ongoing event, the Japan Society of Food Factors (JSoFF) was founded later that same year.

Today, JSoFF has approximately 400 individual members and about 10 corporate or institutional supporting members. Its members are researchers from universities, public research institutions, and private enterprises who specialize in fields such as food science, medicine, pharmaceutical sciences, and nutritional science. The Society aims to promote new research related to food and health, encourage active exchange and collaboration among scientists, and ultimately improve human health.

Major Activities of JSoFF include:

1. Organizing scientific meetings and conferences
2. Publishing the JSoFF Letter
3. Promoting research and recognizing outstanding achievements
4. Conducting research and surveys related to functional food science
5. Supporting the organization and operation of the ICoFF conference series
6. Other activities necessary to achieve the above objectives
